Spectacular views, sublime privacy and easy access to the ocean are the hallmarks of Villa Arrow Marine, one of the true jewels of St. Barth. The elegant, understated design adds to the air of ease, making the rental property an excellent choice for family travel with teenage children when you want to escape from the world. Villa Arrow Marine is a tranquil haven, outfitted in crisp, cool white linens and woodwork, with nothing to distract you from the wide-angle views of the sparkling blue Caribbean just below. Little wonder this home has been featured in several design magazines.

Plenty spacious on its own, Villa Arrow Marine can also be rented with the smaller but equally stylish vacation home next door, Villa Alphane, giving larger groups the option of an additional bedroom. Both are in the private, secure gated community of Mont Jean, adding to the seclusion factor and peace of mind.

Villa Arrow Marine stretches out along the seaside, allowing almost every room to share the stunning Marigot Bay views and cooling tropical breezes - even the kitchen has a wall of windows and sea views when you stand at the sink. In the center is a spacious living area, with a cluster of white couches and chairs around a square coffee table and minimal decoration aside from built-in bookshelves and a gleaming white grand piano. A bar area here provides another gathering place. This living area opens up seamlessly to the wide, partially covered, multilevel terrace. A semicircular swimming pool is privately situated beside a rock garden.

Inside, there are two bedrooms off each side of the main living area. Some have small indoor sitting areas, and they all have bay views from their prettily tiled showers. Two of them are connected by a corridor, but all feel private and comfortable.
