Villa Rose

🛏️ 4 🚿 4 👥 8

Near the very top of Gouverneur, Villa Rose is a newly constructed property offering splendid views over St. Barth's wild island hillsides, St. Jean Bay and the Caribbean. This luxurious rental home was thoughtfully designed as a collection of individual structures connected by decks and the pool. In this way, the villa is fully integrated into the landscape while each bedroom enjoys a great degree of privacy. With the four bedrooms in separate bungalows behind the main house, Villa Rose is an excellent choice for groups of friends who want to share their vacation together, but also sometimes apart, as the spaces are clearly delineated but everything is close to the heart of the action.

A remarkable rental accommodation on its own, Villa Rose can also be expanded into luxurious compound for larger vacation gatherings. It is situated very close to Villa Jasmine and Villa Olive, with which it shares its graceful design sensibility. All three are the work of English interior designer Catherine Pawson. The villas also boast a collection of stylish and comfortable furniture from the design studio of Christian Liaigre. Sibarth allows guests to easily rent all three together.

Villa Rose offers a clean-lined, grandly scaled take on St. Barth style. Thick, square columns form colonnades where the pavilions end and the reflecting pools, koi ponds and swimming pools begin. The experience here can easily go beyond indoor-outdoor living: This is indoor-underwater living.

Between the columns, tropical and desert plants edge right up against the living spaces, creating a captivating interplay of shadows as the sun moves across the sky. Of course, the real showstopper views are the wide panoramas over the northern side of St. Barth and the sea down below, as well as the 18-meter-long infinity pool (heated in winter) that stretches out along the deck. The white-on-white decor is elegant and understated, conceived to keep the focus on nature.

Upon arriving, you'll discover an open living pavilion with plentiful seating for conversation, and gentle island breezes wafting through. To either side is an enclosed space, one containing an air-conditioned living room, and the other a stainless-steel chef's kitchen and dining table that seats eight. A second, covered dining terrace is outside.

Behind this main pavilion, are the private bedrooms, all with king beds, private terraces with gazebos, plunge pools and plenty of entertainment options. Two are a few steps from the living areas, while the last two are even more secluded, in their own little enclave down a hill, and share a pool and a patio with a gazebo.

Guests of Villa Rose will enjoy the added benefits of housekeeping with turndown service.
